POWERS GUILTY.

One of Gov. Goebel's Murderers Gets a Life Sentence.

Swore Like a Trooper When the Law Deprived Him of Liberty.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 18.—Caleb Powers is guilty of conspiring to bring about the murder of Gov. Wm. Goebel. So said 12 men of different political faiths to day in a verdict that was arrived at without argument or wrangling in the jury room. Commonwealth's Attorney Franklin concluded his marvellously eloquent and convincing speech at 11:30 this morning, and Court adjourned till 1 o'clock, but it was 1:32 when Judge Cantrill said to the jury:

"Gentlemen, retire and make a verdict."

The jury filed into the east jury room, just behind where Powers, smiling, sat talking with the Misses Dangerfield, two young ladies who had made his acquaintance since the trial began. He seemed the same cold and unconcerned man he had been all during the trial. After the Yates case had been called and passed, Judge Cantrill adjourned Court and walked out, instructing the Sheriff that if a verdict was reached to send for him.

THEY WERE READY.

A few minutes after 2 o'clock there was a knocking on the jury room door from the inside. The Sheriff answered the call and immediately hurried out for Judge Cantrill. It was instantly flashed all over the Courtroom that a verdict had been reached. The knowing ones thought they knew that such a quick agreement meant a conviction.

Powers never stopped talking and smiling.

Judge Cantrill returned. "Bring in the jury," he said.

Powers's face then took on a strained, expectant look as the men filed past.

"Gentlemen, are you ready to report?" said the Judge, and Foreman I. G. Stone nodded assent. The verdict was passed up to the Clerk.

"Read the verdict, Mr. Clerk," said Judge Cantrill, and the Clerk read as follows, while all in the room held their breath:

"We, the jury, find the defendant guilty, and fix his punishment at confinement in the State Penitentiary for life." I. G. Stone, Foreman.

"Gentlemen, is that your verdict?" asked Judge Cantrill.

"It is," answered the jury.

POWERS WAS SHOCKED.

Powers was watched closely. He seemed shocked for an instant, and a pained look crept into his cold, pale face; great beads of sweat broke out on his forehead, and for the first time he betrayed nervousness, but it was only for a moment. Regaining his composure, he turned to the Misses Dangerfield and said: "I was not expecting that. The verdict is unjust."

Judge Cantrill thanked the jury for their patience under such a long strain, the Court adjourned and all was over.

There was no sort of demonstration following the verdict, and the vast crowd filed out of the courthouse almost in silence.

GOEBEL'S BROTHER WEPT.

After Court adjourned a very pathetic scene occurred in the west jury room, which has been occupied by attorneys for the prosecution as a conference room. At that Goebel, who has devoted himself to all the details of the trial so industriously for months, was almost overcome when he related that one of the conspirators had been convicted. He stood at the window silently weeping, in striking contrast to what was going on in the opposite jury room. In three Powers had stepped for a few minutes' conference before going back to jail, and he cursed and swore at the jury, the lawyers, the witnesses and everybody. He was in a blind rage and vented his spleen in a most blasphemous way, so said those near enough the door to hear.

PEKIN TAKEN.

Allies Enter the Chinese Capital on the 15th.

Americans Were in the Fight and Were the First to Scale the Wall.

Washington, Aug. 18.—General Yamaguchi wires from Pekin to Tokio, under date of August 16, as follows:

"The allies attacked Pekin early yesterday, opening with artillery on the eastern side. The wall was obstinately held by the enemy."

"The Japanese and Russians were on the northward of the Tungchow canal. The Americans and British were on the south side. At nightfall the Japanese blew up the two eastern gates of the Tartar City and entered."

"In the meantime the Americans and British entered the Chinese City by the Tung Pien gates. Detachments of each force were sent toward the legations. The parties met near the legations and opened communication. All the Ministers and their staffs were found safe."

"The Japanese loss was over 100 killed, including three officers. The losses of the allies have not been ascertained. Four hundred Chinese were killed."

Americans Took Part.

The dispatch from General Yamaguchi, giving the details of the capture of Pekin, was accepted by the War Department officials as giving the most satisfactory account thus far received. General Yamaguchi is in command of the Fifth Army Corps, with the rank of Major General, and is regarded as one of the fighting Generals of the Japanese army. His report discloses for the first time that the Americans shared in the assault on the city and that they marched with the British troops to the south gate, while the Japanese and Russians operated against the east gate. What was most noticeable in the Japanese report was that the Japanese killed are given at 100 and the Chinese killed at 400.

Heavy Losses Expected.

This makes no account of the wounded, and indicates that when the detailed casualty list is received it will be a heavy one, as the wounded always far exceed the killed. Furthermore, the report states that the loss of the "allies" had not been ascertained. This is the first intimation that there were losses other than those sustained by the Japanese. The entire tenor of the report indicates that the engagement was a fierce one, lasting throughout the day of August 15, as the attack began early in the morning and the blowing up of the gates did not occur until nightfall.

Chaffee Heard From.

Washington, Aug. 20.—News of the rescue of the Ministers at Pekin was confirmed yesterday by the receipt at Washington of a cable message from Maj. Gen. Chaffee, who reports that he entered the legation grounds on the evening of August 14 (believed to be 15th) with the Fourteenth infantry and a light battery. Gen. Chaffee met with resistance, as he says eight men were wounded during the day's fighting. Rear Admiral Remy cables that the telegraph line to Pekin has been interrupted, and that information from Japanese sources says the Empress Dowager is detained in the "inner city," which is being bombarded by the allies. Admiral Remy's message is dated Taku, Aug. 18. A cable message from Rear Admiral Bruce at Cheloo to the British Admiralty, says street fighting still continues in Pekin and part of the city is on fire, he says the Chinese are making their last stand in the "inner city." He also confirms the news of the detention of the Empress Dowager.

It is said the next move will probably be the arrangement of an ar-

REMARKABLE TOWN.

Six Thousand Inhabitants' Of Pelzer. S. S., Under Rule.

No Newspaper, No Courts, Lawyers, No Saloons and No Police.

Probably the most remarkable town in the United States is Pelzer, S. C. Though a flourishing, progressive business center, with a population of over 6,000, it has no city government, no council, no Mayor and no police. In spite of this extraordinary condition of affairs, the city has the reputation of being one of the best regulated cities in the country.

This strange city has been in existence seventeen years and presents one of the most interesting phases of the study of the municipal problem that ever confronted the student. It has no newspaper, no courts, no lawyers, no saloons, no theaters, no politicians, and in the entire population of 6,000 not one face is black. There is no private ownership, everything in the city, land, buildings and manufacturing industries belonging exclusively to the great corporation which established the town.

In its entire history of seventeen years there has never been a single murder committed, and the city has never experienced a strike or any kind of labor disturbances. The antecedents of all persons coming into the town as residents and employees are carefully investigated, and only those bearing untarnished reputations are permitted to remain.

The town has several fine schools, there are a free circulating library and reading rooms, which are free to every resident. The citizens are industrious and thrifty, and in the only bank in the town have invested over $100,000 of their savings.

One man has supreme authority over the entire town and its inhabitants, and no potentate of Europe is vested with more peremptory powers. This man is the President of the company which founded and owns the town.

At present Mr. Ellison A. Smyth is the autocrat to preside over the destinies of Pelzer citizens and their interests. Mr. Smyth has assistants, but full power is vested in him for the conduct of the city.

When interviewed for the Mail and Express recently, Mr. Smyth remarked:

"Our system does away with all the evils of politics and office-seeking. Of course, you might argue that it vests a great deal of power in the hands of one man and that the abuse of this authority might result in dangerous conditions. There is a certain element of truth in that. But we have been living under this system for seventeen years, and our city is one of the best governed in the country. Our citizens are not burdened with exorbitant taxes, neither are they compelled to maintain useless and expensive office-holders. Every one in Pelzer must work for a living, and time-serving politicians and those who live at the expense of other people give our town a wide berth. It is to this fact that I describe a great measure of our success, for I am firmly convinced that most of the lawlessness which exists in great cities proceeds directly from the pernicious influence of the politicians."

"While Pelzer is essentially a cotton town, this is not our only industry. There are, besides the four great cotton mills, an oil mill, a boom and mattress company and a savings bank. The Pelzer Manufacturing Company bears all the expenses incident to the operation of the city, and does all the municipal work required, including lighting, the sanitary work and the street cleaning and repairing. Eight hours is the limit of a day's work, and we keep Saturday half-holiday the year round."

"Our employees occupy some nine hundred or more cottages, built for them by the company, and each is surrounded by a large garden."

"Large pastures are maintained for the cattle, which the people own and which consist of cows, horses, sheep and goats. Many of our citizens own their own horses and vehicles."

"The public school system is highly efficient, and the schools are kept open ten months in the year. Those who work at the mills are required to leave their work at some stated time each week in order to receive instruction. Education is compulsory, and our system includes all grades. Every effort is made to combine the educational and the practical, and all those students who manifest particular aptitude are selected for advanced educational courses. Women are furnished the same facilities as men."

"We have no local newspaper, and we don't want any. Our reading rooms subscribe to twenty-five leading daily papers, which are sent here from all the prominent cities, and contain all the information that is necessary to keep our people in touch with the outside world. We have no law courts, because we don't need any. Our citizens live in peace and friendship. They do not quarrel; they have no financial claims against each other, and the trivial, occasional differences which may arise I am able to decide myself. I am allowed no lawyer to sue me, and another would soon move off to fight him, and the result would not be discord. We have no Aldermen, no courts, no municipal officials, no police. The residents keep the peace and get along comfortably without them. We have no drunkenness, because we don't permit liquor within the city limits, and drunkenness furnishes more than half the business of a police force."

THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL

Said to Be The Power Behind the Tennessee Central Railway.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—Rumor has it that the Illinois Central is back of the building of the Tennessee Central railway. While confirmation of the rumor could not be obtained to-day, it was not emphatically denied by the officials of the company here. The Tennessee Central is being constructed from Harrison, Tenn., to Hopkinsville, Ky., on the Princeton branch of the Illinois Central, a distance of 210 miles. Among other cities it runs through Crossville, Smithville, Sparta, Nashville and Clarksville, and from Emory Gap there will be a branch running south to Kingston, a distance of six miles. Its main connection is the Queen and Crescent route at Harrison Junction.

Nearly every foot of the country through which the line will run is rich in deposits of iron ore and coal, which will give the road plenty of freight. The line is being constructed with a view to economical operation and good speed. It is expected that the grading will be completed as far as Monterey by September.

In connection with its new ventures the Illinois Central is to open its Little Rock service about August 30.

The Agricultural and Mechanical (State College) College of Kentucky, offers the following courses of study, viz: Agricultural, Horticultural, Chemical, Biological, Mathematical, Normal School, Classical, Mechanical Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Civil Engineering, each of which extends over four years and leads to a degree. Post graduate courses of study are also provided, leading each to a master's degree. Each course of study is organized under a separate faculty. The general faculty numbers more than thirty professors and instructors. County Appointees receive tuition, room rent in dormitories, fuel and lights, and if they remain two months, traveling expenses. The laboratories and museums are large, well equipped, comprehensive and modern. The last Legislature appropriated $30,000 for a college home for young women and $30,000 for drill hall and gymnasium for men. Military tactics and science are fully provided for and required by Congress. Graduates from the several courses of study readily find excellent positions and liberal remuneration. The demand is largely in excess of the ability of the college to supply. Last year the matriculation list was 563. DEAR SIRS:—I feel it my duty to write to you and let you know how much good your medicine has done for me. Twenty three years ago I was taken with some kind of stomach trouble and I tried everything I heard of. They did me but little good. Three years ago I was laid up on my back and I was so poor and weak that I could hardly walk—couldn't work any. My husband received a book through the mail, advertising your medicine, and he sent our little boy to the drug store to get one of your ten-cent bottles. I began to use it. It is strange to say, but it's the truth, the second dose I took gave me lots of relief. I kept using it for nearly a year and I am as strong as I was before and can do any kind of work. I am thankful to you for what you have done for me. I have gotten others to use it and they are getting much good. God bless Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for doing me so much good. Yours Truly, Mrs. Isabel Winkler, Freetown, 4 miles S., Ind.

A Prominent Physician Chats of the Ethics of the Profession.

"As a rule," said a physician, "the members of my profession are conscientious men, who desire and strive to bring about the ultimate recovery of their patients."

"I say 'ultimately,' because there are a few who are not so anxious to accomplish an immediate restoration, as they might. This 'running a case' to secure calls and consequent fees is frequent enough to have a recognized standing and practice in the profession, though we are not given to discussing it in public nor with our patients."

"It must be borne in mind that physicians are human beings, who have an ambition, not only to become prominent in their chosen calling, but possessed of an abundance of this world's luxuries. They adopted the medical profession either because of special aptitude, or because it affords a career, usually a good one, and one in which independence and high position in the community may be obtained. Charity and commiseration toward his fellow-men played no part in the medical student's contemplations of the future. The die was cast purely as a business venture, and as a business venture it is maintained."

"Let us see. The young physician finds himself 'short' on patients and bank account, and 'long' on hopes and ambitions. A patient, then, to him, is, from the very start, a source, the only source, of his income. The more patients he has, the more calls he makes and receives, and more money deposited in the bank follows as a necessary corollary."

"Why should he not, therefore, make all the calls he can? He does. Thus, it becomes a habit formed early in his professional career, and it is hard, they say, to teach an old dog new tricks."

"On the other hand, the patient is ill. He has not the technical knowledge of his medical adviser, and he knows himself, so to speak, upon the latter's merciful protection. If he feels that his physician is making unnecessary calls, a sense of the proprieties of this relationship prevents him from giving expression to his feelings, even if he were so inclined. Again, some physicians—and to the credit of the profession, I am happy to say, they are in the large minority—do not prescribe at once such remedies as they know will act quickly. In other words, they do not wish their patients to get well too soon. Women, rather than men, are more easily imposed upon in this respect. Some women patients appear to like to be nursed along a 'slow recovery.'"

"As a simile, a physician's practice is much like a game of whist in playing rounds. If you play your highest trump remedy and get your patient out at once, you win the trick, and you lose him as an immediate patient, though he may stay with you for future consultations. If you play your lowest trump, or slowest remedy, you lose the trick by dialling with him too long, for he will dispense with your services and call in another doctor."

"Physicians do many kind and beneficent acts, more than the public fully know, but in that I am a 'bear' on my own market, you know."—Washington Star.

GETTING MARRIED ON TRUST.

Justice Davis Didn't Get His Expected Fee.

"Oh, you know me, boss; I've been here before."

This remark was addressed to Justice Frank Davis by a very black lady who drifted into the square's office a few days ago, accompanied by a copper-colored negro.

"We want to get married," said the negro, producing a license issued by County Clerk Speed to Judge Gill and Mattie Shipp. The square unblinded the negro's license, and the crowd in the office snatched their lips in anticipation of the treat that was to follow the knot tying, for it is the custom with some Memphis magistrates to always spend marriage fees over the bar.

When the marriage ceremony was concluded the newly made husband, instead of digging up the fee, gave the magistrate a broad grin and said: "Now, boss, I owes you for two. You married me before, but I ain't forgot it, and I'll pay you for both when the pay train comes in."

Justice Davis took a good look at the darky, and recognized him as a railroad brakeman whom he had married to another woman about two years before. The office crowd failed to get the treat, but Justice Davis told them he would make it two when "Judge" paid his fees.—Memphis Scimitar.

CAMP CERULEAN.

Soldier Boys Will Take A Week Off From Work.

About 30 members of Co. D, Third Regiment Kentucky State Guards, Capt. C. L. Tandy in command, will go into camp at Cerulean Springs tomorrow to remain one week. The military camp will be located on the hotel grounds behind the hotel, and the company will be under strict military discipline. As the Republicans left no money in the military fund, the encampment will be at the private expense of the soldiers who go. They will be provided with their own commissary and will do their own cooking, as in regular State encampments.

ARM AMPUTATED.

Mr. L. J. Purcell's Injury More Serious Than First Reported.

The accident sustained by Mr. L. J. Purcell, of Lafayette, a week ago, proved to be more serious than first reported.

Mr. Purcell was putting his thrasher in the shed and was called upon to tighten a friction slide. He finished this and called to his assistant to go ahead, but just as the machine was about to start he discovered that his wrench was lying inside the wheel. He attempted to grab it out but was not quick enough and his arm was caught and crushed. The bones were set, but later amputation was necessary. The operation was performed last Monday night.

SHOULDER DISLOCATED.

Painful Injury to Mr. E. M. Barnes.

Mr. E. M. Barnes, of Pon, had his shoulder dislocated a few days ago while trying to put a bridle on a mule. He had his arm over the mule's neck and was in the act of putting the bridle on, when the animal suddenly reared up and throwing his arm up dislocated the shoulder. Mr. Barnes is just able to be up again from his injury.
